This March 4, 2015, Diplomatic Courier and Women's Democracy Network celebrate International Women's Day and Women's History Month with a delegation of women leaders from around the world. These leaders have demonstrated their commitment to increasing women's political representation in decision making and promoting democratic governance in their communities and countries.

Diplomatic Courier's focus for March 2015 is the Post-UN Millennium Development Goals agenda, with a particular spotlight on women's political and economic empowerment and how the latter should become one of the Sustainable Development Goals informing the development agenda for the next decade.

Women's Democracy Network's focus for March 2015 is honoring women's caucus members from around the globe who are making a difference in their countries by advocating for the development of legislation that considers the unique perspective of women and girls.

The Women's Democracy Network (W.D.N.) empowers women to participate in the political process and helps them gain the skills needed to take on greater leadership roles in government, political parties and civil society. To date, the Network is active in 61 countries in every region of the world. Through workshops and mentorships, WDN connects aspiring and accomplished women leaders, creates forums for sharing ideas and experiences, provides leadership training and resource materials and encourages the formation and expansion of regional networks among women.
